Pencilled Note By F.D.R. Is Put Into Record Today

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—A copy of a pencilled note in the handwriting of the late President Roosevelt outlining a possible temporary agreement with Japan late in 1941 was placed in the record of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee today.

A notation said it was given by the President to the secretary of state—"not dated but probably written shortly after November 20, 1941." Apparently it was prepared for some sort of proposition never submitted to Japan.

It read:
"I read:
"6 months
"1. U. S. to resume economic relations—some oil and rice now—more later.

"2. Japan to send no more troops to Indo-China or Manchurian border or any place south (Dutch, Brit. or Siam).

"3. Japan to agree not to invoke the Tri-Partite Pact even if U. S. gets into European war.

"4. U. S. to introduce Japs to China, to talk things over but U. S. to take no part in their conversations.

"Later on Pacific agreements."

Mr. Roosevelt added a handwritten addition to the draft of a telegram to British Prime Minister Churchill November 24, describing a proposed "modus vivendi" on temporary agreement between this country and Japan. The "modus vivendi" never was submitted.

The late President wrote:
"This seems to me a fair proposition for the Japanese but its acceptance or rejection is really a matter of internal Japanese politics. I am not very hopeful and we must all be prepared for real trouble, possibly soon."

Strike Hits Calcutta

Calcutta, Nov. 23 (AP)—Twenty thousand municipal workers went on strike in turbulent Calcutta today as disorders touched off by the resumption of the trial of members of the Indian National Army swept the city for the third day. The rioting already has taken the lives of at least 15 persons and resulted in injuries to 150 others, including 12 American soldiers. Brig. Gen. Robert P. Neyland, commander of the U. S. base section headquarters, has placed the city out of bound for all American troops except those on essential duties.

Over Inch of Rain

Heavy rain in this entire area latter part of Wednesday night and up to around 9:30 Thursday morning raised streams generally. The gauge at the Ashokan Dam showed a total rainfall of 1.2 inches, in addition to .71 inch which fell on Monday. The reservoir is reported well up, although not running over.

Buffalo Is Given Five Inches of Snow

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—Winter took a firmer grip on New York state today as more than five inches of snow blanketed part of Buffalo and temperatures in the low 20's were reported generally.

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecast continued cloudy and slightly colder tonight and tomorrow.

Elsewhere in the state flurries were reported.

Buffalo's snowfall was heaviest in the northern part of the city. At Buffalo airport, there was an official fall of two inches. Driving conditions were hazardous.

Elmira, with an overnight low of 19, was the coldest point reported. It fell to 21 at Binghamton and Buffalo, 25 at Syracuse and Rochester and 28 at Albany and Rome.

Strong winds were reported in the Syracuse area.

A new low for the autumn season, 31, was registered in New York. Normal temperature for the date is 41.

Admiral Halsey Hauls Down Flag And Is Retired

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 23 (AP)—At 63 Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey, a sturdy sailor who served his country for 45 years, has relinquished command of the Third Fleet.

His blue four-starred flag was hauled down from the main truck of his flagship, the battleship South Dakota, in colorful ceremonies yesterday as the Admiral released command of the fleet that so readily steamed along the Japanese coast and poured thousands of tons of damage on the enemy.

Halsey's voice trembled a little and his eyes misted as he spoke briefly before the two-starred flag of his successor, Rear Admiral Howard F. Kingman, replaced his.

"In hauling down my flag I am terminating my seagoing career of slightly over 45 years," he said. "This is far from a pleasure. But I deem it necessary for men of my age to step aside so that younger men can take over the greatest Navy in the world."

The incidents occurred after Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander last night added 16 of the department's 20 police emergency trucks with their crews and one detective each to join the after dark vigil. Wallander also raised to 200 the number of expert marksmen on patrol after dark.

Even as the new mobile divisions were mobilized, police squads, headed personally by the commissioner, swept down on several places, seizing 82 persons—most of them teen-agers—on felony charges. Most of the arrests were for possession of concealed weapons.

Meanwhile police still probed the death of an unidentified man, about 45, whose body was found yesterday in the Queens-Midtown Automobile Tunnel under the East river. At police headquarters the belief was expressed that the body had been tossed from an automobile.

Search also continued for the slayers of Al (Bummy) Davis, former boxer, who was shot to death Wednesday morning by bandits in the robbery of a grill, and of 16-year old Susan Scanga, who was beaten and shot to death Tuesday night.

In Brooklyn, two men today held up Benjamin Blecher as he opened the Neptune Live Poultry Market in the Sheepshead Bay district and took $4,000 from a sale.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 23 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, Jr., Fourth Army commander who died Wednesday at Brooke General Hospital, will be buried in private services at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

The body of the veteran army officer who succumbed to pneumonia two days before his 56th birthday will be flown to West Point tomorrow in the B-25 medium bomber which he used as Commander of the Seventh Army in Europe.

The Episcopal chaplain will conduct the services. Active pallbearers include six enlisted men, former members of the Seventh Army, now stationed at the academy. The body will be cremated.

Fourth Army troops throughout this area participated in memorial services today honoring their former commander.

Crime, Violence Gains in New York

Biggest Motored Patrol
Rooms Streets in Manhattan

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Crime and violence mounted in New York city today even as new armed police mobile divisions—the largest history—roamed the streets in combat against a reign of terrorism.

A 28 year old man, Rocco Loscalzo, was shot to death early this morning in the Greenwich Village section. Police, expressed the belief the shooting was a gang slaying. Loscalzo died under a fusillade of shots fired from a doorway.

Five bullets penetrated his back and two entered his head, they said. Police said Loscalzo was freed in bail October 24, after being arrested on a charge of grand larceny in the theft of $20,000 in liquor August 30 from a warehouse.

The slaying brought to 66 the number of persons who have met violent deaths in the last 74 days. Audrey Beasley, 19, also reported to police that she was shot in the right knee while crossing a street in downtown Manhattan. She told police she heard the shot and then felt a "sting" in her leg.

In another eruption of violence, a 20-year old youth, Philip Becerra, was shot in the right side by police while attempting to escape arrest as a suspect in a series of early morning burglaries in Brooklyn. Police said he was in serious condition.

The incidents occurred after Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander last night added 16 of the department's 20 police emergency trucks with their crews and one detective each to join the after dark vigil. Wallander also raised to 200 the number of expert marksmen on patrol after dark.

Ahavath Israel Ball Attracts Big Local Audience

Entertainment Pleases
2,000 Persons as Annual Synagogue Affair
Is Held

Congregation Ahavath Israel entertained about 2,000 people at its ninth annual stage show and ball Thanksgiving Eve at the municipal auditorium. The vaudeville acts and the band presented the latest in swing, boogie woogie and featured dancers, singers and comedians.

Herman G. Rafalowsky, general chairman, introduced the program with several selections by the band under the direction of Johnny "Seal" Davis. They immediately gave their swing interpretations of the popular tunes of the day including "Till the End of Time." Excelling in this field, they played a number of similar selections for dancing which followed the show.

Mayor William F. Edmuth officially welcomed the guests to the ball and praised the citizens of Kingston for supporting so many worthy projects now and during the war. Greetings during the evening were also brought from George Kramer, one of the co-chairmen and from Harry Moss through whose agency, Associated Booking Corp., the show was arranged.

The dance team of Carlos and Chita was one of the best presented this year in Kingston. Their routines called for continuous motion, and timing, grace and control. The musical Ben Yost Vikings were one of the outstanding song delights of the evening. The group of six men presented a medley of songs from "Oklahoma" followed by College songs and "Song of the Vagabond." The songs were presented with style and several of the group were heard in solos. The important comedian of the evening was Joe Arena and his dog, Queenie, who have recently returned from U.S.O. tour. Using tumbling as the basis his act consisted of bringing forth glasses of liquid from his pockets after supposedly falling directly on the spot where they were hidden. He concluded by bringing forth a pitcher of liquid from his back. Queenie also did her share of tumbling and assisting.

Henny Nadell was master of ceremonies and presented a comedy skit on the tribulations of being classified I-A. Sid Gary, baritone returned this year to sing in his own sincere way the top songs of the season as well as the Jewish spiritual "Eli Eli." Quite different, Hilde Simmons sat at the piano playing her own accompaniments to her songs. Her specialties were intimate torch songs.

Rae Pearl and Yo Yo, Negro dance team, did fast stepping tap routines and in addition Rae Pearl possessed a strong high soprano voice with which she sang her own interpretation of the "Indian Love Call." The Diamond Brothers entertained with a comedy and dance routine.

After the formal entertainment Johnny Seal Davis and his band played for dancing until 1:30 a. m. Refreshments were on sale and flowers were sold.

By Buys Former Boarding House at Malden

Messrs. Schoentag and Ludwig have sold the former Jordan Boarding House at Malden to Mrs. Clara Grigat, who was the owner of the favorably known Purly Hand Laundry in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn, N. Y. Her husband, to whom she is happily married for 34 years, was a special agent for the United States government 25 years ago. He then became the owner and principal of the well known Brooklyn Detective Service. At the start of the war, Mr. Grigat offered himself for military service but was rejected on account of age. He then passed an examination and became a qualified German-English examiner, with the U. S. Office of Censorship. He rose rapidly, being promoted several times, and at the conclusion of his service, September 7, 1945, was the chief supervisor of the Prisoner of War Department-Parcel Post. All personal parcels being sent to American prisoners of war in Germany or elsewhere as well as all parcels addressed to German prisoners of war in this country were thoroughly examined in his department under his strict supervision.

In recognition of an outstanding contribution to the nation's war effort a "Certificate of Merit" was presented to Mr. Grigat by the U. S. government at the conclusion of his service. Mr. Grigat is proud of this document and will have it on the wall of his room at "Idle Rest," which will be the new name for the former Jordan's Boarding House.

Austria Will Hold First Free Election Sunday With Three Parties in Competition

By MAURICE E. MORAN

Vienna, Nov. 23 (AP)—Austria will hold her first free election since 1938 on Sunday with three parties—the Socialist, the Volkspartei and the Communist—competing for control of 165 seats in the National Assembly and 408 seats in the Provincial Assemblies.

Under the proportional election plan the majority party does not win all seats, but all parties are given representation according to the percentage voted polled.

The main contest apparently is between the Socialists led by Premier Karl Renner and reconstructed from elements of the old pre-Fascist Socialist party, and the Volkspartei rightist, culled from remnants of the strongly Catholic Christian Democrat party, the Schussnigg-Dollfuss regime and other conservative elements opposed to state socialization.

It is generally believed the Communists will not poll more than 17 per cent and may fall as low as five per cent.

Some sources feel the Volkspartei strength in the provinces may outweigh Socialist support among the workers, but in recent work council elections among Viennese and lower Austrian concerns the Socialists won a clearcut majority in every case in naming workers to plant councils.

But currently, Austrians are much more interested in who represents them in the Workers Plant Council than in who they send to government seats.

There are several reasons for the apathy toward elections. First, people are more interested in eating and keeping warmly clothed.

Further, Austrians have not voted freely for so long they cannot believe it's going to happen now, although balloting undoubtedly will be secret.

The franchise is open to all persons over 21 except former Nazis, and in American zones at least, former members of the Heimwehr and the Dollfuss-Schussnigg militia are denied official position. Some governmental sources estimate that the ruling against Nazis disfranchises as many as 200,000. The ruling against the Austrian military organizations eliminated some prospective candidates for office in the provinces and in Salzburg led to an abortive attempt by the Volkspartei to boycott elections in the American zone.

The Volkspartei apparently is hardest hit by the rulings because they protested loudest. The protests provided the other parties with fodder, charging that the Volkspartei attracted former Nazis, Fascists and was highly reactionary.

There has been talk of forming a fourth political party, the Democratic Union of Austria, the so called "party without a party," but this must be sanctioned by the Allied Council. This sanction could not be obtained in time to place the party on the ballots.

The chief instrument of election is the Central Electoral Board of Vienna, a branch of the Department of the Interior, to which Provincial Boards will report. But decisive results are unlikely to be known for 24 hours after the polls close.

Let's Get Going

What this country needs is more goods, more production, more people working—

For four years America hasn't been producing enough of the things people need—new cars, new clothes, washing machines, radios, refrigerators—hundreds of necessities. We need these things—and we need them badly.

But what is happening? The whole postwar production program is in danger. Union leaders are closing down plants—or threatening to close them down—while they hold up industry for more wages for less work—

Instead of mounting production, there is mounting confusion. Fifty-two hours' pay for forty hours' work—or else.

The public interest deserves more consideration than that—

The veterans are entitled to a better homecoming. Consumers are entitled to better treatment. The working men themselves deserve a better break.

Right now, what we need is production, production and more production—

America needs more goods—more people at work.

Let's get going!

LIFE FOR LIFE?

A veterans with an honorable and heroic record of three years in the Pacific, the Purple Heart, promotion to the grade of technical sergeant, was arrested recently charged with a murder allegedly committed 10 years ago. The F.B.I. on his trail, learned of his induction into the army and bode its time till his discharge to arrest him. Still in his uniform, bedecked with his decorations and battle stars, he was put in jail in lieu of a $25,000 bond.

What a queer manipulation of fate he must think it that he should have been nursed back to health from his wounds, honored as a soldier hero on the one hand, only to have the nation he defended try to snatch his life away again. Somehow it would seem that this man—far from risking his life, for helping end the Japanese threat, for his wounds, should be given another chance at decent citizenship.

An individual case of this exceptional kind needs consideration on its individual merits. The nature and circumstances of the murder of long ago would be factors in the decision. The character and present purpose of the young man are other important factors. To use a doctor's word, what is the prognosis?

True, murder is a crime. That is the law. Law must be taken seriously if society is to survive. But in the case of a man who has turned from evil to good, so clearly, long and well, it does seem as if his nation should find a way to give him some extra consideration beyond the exact letter of the law, while holding its spirit.

CONGRESS AT SCHOOL

Congressmen have been going to school. Members of the Senate and House committees entrusted with legislation for regulating the atomic bomb found the subject so perplexing that they engaged two groups of scientific men to instruct them. The Senate group is attending night school, the House afternoon sessions. Senators have Dr. Edward Condon, head of the Bureau of Standards, and James R. Newman, a mathematician. The House is listening to several experienced physicists. Chairman McMahon of the Senate committee said public hearings on atomic energy control will start only after the legislators had gained enough knowledge to comprehend the testimony.

When politicians will admit there are some things they don't understand, and go about to inform themselves as a prelude to law-making, the ordinary citizen can have hope and faith in his government. The atomic bomb is a complex and deeply erudite subject. And there are other matters before congressmen regarding which they could afford also to seek skilled and professional information. Bernard Baruch's suggestion that the nation investigate the state of its own resources, financial, natural and human, is a sound one.

THANKSGIVING

The first real Thanksgiving since 1911 was celebrated wholeheartedly here Thursday. While many families were not yet reunited, they know that the day is not far off, and the waiting is no longer mixed with dread. Everyone rejoices, except perhaps the turkeys, who this year were again plentiful on the Thanksgiving board.

The returned service men have memories of other Thanksgivings in strange places: the North African desert, Iwo Jima, the Solomons or small French towns. All their lives the recurrence of Thanksgiving will bring these scenes back. Thanksgiving will thus be forever associated with the greatest achievement of their lives, and acquire a new meaning as a festival.

PEARL HARBOR FACTS

Already the Pearl Harbor Committee of the Congress has established:

That Japan was hopeful that a fight could be avoided;

That Japan was prepared to fight as well as she ever could be;

That the United States was not at all ready for a war in the Pacific;

That the United States had broken the Japanese code and knew every important move that Japan made as early as November 5;

That the Japanese had set November 25 as the last date for peaceful negotiations and that the United States knew that date prior to the issuance of an ultimatum to Japan by Mr. Hull; (There need be no quarrel over the word "ultimatum" from the standpoint of a war between the two countries, it was so considered by at least one of them and was acted upon accordingly.)

That the Japanese fleet sailed to be ready to fight but with instructions to be prepared to return to Japan if the negotiations in Washington succeeded.

It is further clear: That the naval and army witnesses are unwilling and reluctant to assume the subterfuge of lacking information which they should not lack because of the positions they held now or held at the time;

That the witnesses and the committee majority are protecting somebody;

That the minority members are apparently digging more deeply into the situation than counsel for the committee;

That while Admiral Kimmel and General Short are, in fact, being tried in the court of public opinion, they remain silenced and are not permitted in any manner really to protect themselves which they could only do if their counsel were permitted to cross-examine the witnesses;

That obviously Pearl Harbor represents a bureaucratic failure and a conspiracy of suppression that will not succeed because every day these hearings are evoking keener interest;

That the Democrats regard it all as a "smear-Roosevelt" effort on the part of the Republicans and are treating it as such, while the Republicans are using it to gain whatever kudos come from thoroughness and frankness.

It is unfortunate that the Democrats and Republicans did not get together on Pearl Harbor with the understanding that it would be a clear-cut investigation, designed to smear no one but to get at the exact facts. It may be true that Mr. Roosevelt's "face," Mr. Hull's reputation, Admiral Kimmel's ability and General Short's integrity are involved.

But these are as nothing compared with the life of a single American soldier or sailor who may have been killed because someone blundered. That life—let us call him "The Unknown American Boy"—might have been that of your son or mine. We gave our children, for life or death, to our country in this war but we have a right to know that whatever happened to them was not the result of stupidity, chicanery or obstinate blundering. We also need to know how they are to be safeguarded in the future. Perhaps as a result of a thorough, scientific investigation of this nature, the State, Army and Navy Departments may be reorganized. One of the major defects of the administration of our government is the concentration of power in the hands of the President which really makes all other officers of government irresponsible, except to him. The Pearl Harbor investigation may lead to a consideration of ministerial responsibility.

That is the human problem in this Pearl Harbor investigation. Saving the skin of some individual who for an historical moment struttled the stage of human events means less than nothing. For ultimately the truth, the entire truth, will out. It had better be done in an orderly, unbiased congressional investigation than by controversial autobiographies and the delving into the records half a century hence by scholarly historians to whom the current great names may have less than transient significance. The Democrats and Republicans ought to stop growling at each other—and let the chips fall where they may.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

THE QUICK AND THE SLOW

There is much spoken and written about goiter, overactivity of the thyroid gland, hyperthyroidism, but the opposite condition—underactivity of the thyroid gland—is seldom mentioned. This is due to the fact that even a moderate degree of overactivity—nervousness, trembling of limbs, rapid heart beat—can be noticed by family or physician, a moderate degree of underactivity is not noted because the symptoms—slowness of mind and body and some excess fat—do not attract attention. Some recent cases of underactivity of the thyroid gland with a survey of groups of "slow" children makes it worth while to repeat some of the symptoms of both overactivity and underactivity mentioned some months ago.

Thus I quoted Dr. R. H. Williams, Harvard Medical School in Medical Clinics in which he stated that the early signs of overactivity of the thyroid, that is goiter are: "Nervousness, palpitation, difficulty breathing or breathlessness on exertion, slight swelling of the legs, discomfort in hot weather or in a hot room, increased number of stools or tendency to diarrhea, staring (exophthalmos) of the eyes. All these symptoms occurring in a female between the age of 15 and 30 should make one suspicious of poisoning of system by too much thyroid juice being manufactured by the thyroid gland."

In discussing the opposite condition, underactivity of the thyroid gland, hyperthyroidism, I quoted Dr. D. H. Smith in Southern Medicine and Surgery who stated:

"Symptoms of hypothyroidism are: (1) weakness and fatigue, (2) muscle tiredness at end of the day with aching muscles and cramps, (3) good intelligence but slow when they use their minds, (4) become sleepy when reading, (5) worry about things undone, (6) many are overweight and complain how difficult it is for them to lose weight unless they diet strictly."

It can thus be seen why the high strung nervous individual can be suspected of having the goiter—overactivity of gland—whereas the slow, slow-moving, sleepy, overweight individual is called lazy instead of being suspected of having an underactive thyroid gland.

Goiter may be of the simple type which is not dangerous or it may be severe. Send today for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on this subject called "Goiter: Simple and Severe." To obtain it just send ten cents and a three-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Daily Freeman, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, First Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. It Takes a House—

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Howard Hendricks, for years a well known writer for newspapers and periodicals, died December 4, 1921, in his home on Clinton avenue, aged 81 years. Mr. Hendricks was particularly known for his series of articles on the history of Kingston.

He collaborated with the late Judge A. T. Clearwater in the preparation of Clearwater's history of Ulster county, and wrote the chapters telling of the birth and growth of the city. These chapters give a vivid picture of the days when the two villages of Kingston and Rondout were founded, and brings their history up to the years at the turn of the century.

Another well known man who died on December 11, 1921, in his home on Main street, was DuBois G. Atkins, aged 55 years. For 30 years he had been a member of the city's board of education, serving both as president and member.

Mr. Atkins came to Kingston in 1890, and for a brief time was a member of the editorial staff of the old Kingston Daily Express. In 1892 he was appointed principal of old School No. 11, now School No. 7, and served about a year when he resigned to become deputy county treasurer under Andrew F. L. Deyo.

During his vacations he studied law in the office of John A. Linsion, and completed his studies in the office of Augustus Schoonmaker. He was admitted to the bar on December 5, 1893.

The Rev. Charles Howland Cookman, who served as pastor of St. James Methodist Church from 1910 to 1914, died on December 5, 1921, in his home in Englewood, N. J., aged 49 years. During the four years he was in Kingston he was very active in the religious life of the city.

Older readers may recall the news and tobacco store conducted by Michael Ward on lower Broadway, near the Orpheum Theatre. Mr. Ward died on November 21, 1921, in his home on Ann street. Before the consolidation of the city's school system he held the office of trustee of old School District No. 3. He had also served as a member of the old alms board, and had represented the Sixth ward in the Common Council for several terms.

John W. Howley, a popular passenger conductor on the West Shore railroad, died on November 22, 1921, in his home on Elmwood street, following a long illness.

Mr. Howley for a number of years was conductor of what was known during the summer vacation months as the Hudsons train that ran from New York city to the Catskill Mountains summer resorts.

He first entered the employ of the railroad when it only ran between Buffalo and Albany, and when the tracks were laid from Albany to New York, he was assigned to the passenger run between New York and Kingston.

Mr. Howley was a charter member of Kingston Lodge of Elks. For 11 years he assumed his duties as physical director at the local Y.M.C.A. on August 16, 1921. He succeeded Norman A. Billinger, who had resigned.

Vice-marshal Andrew W. Walker's resignation as a member of the police department became effective December 1, 1921. He had served 12½ years on the force. I believe he was the first officer to be assigned to horseback duty on the police force.

In the years before the present system of patrol cars was adopted in operation many residents of Kingston complained that they never saw a policeman in that section of the city. The only time they saw a cop they said was when they were called to the business district for their shopping.

The police board decided that the only way to remedy the situation was the installation of a so-called patrol car, and the board purchased a patrol car, and Officer Walker was assigned to ride him

BABSON ON BUSINESS

BABSON DISCUSSES BUSINESS AND ATOMIC ENERGY

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 23—

We probably are headed for two or three years of good business with fair employment. Sixty-five years ago only one billion dollars was available for spending or investing. In fifty-eight years this gradually increased from one billion to fifteen billion dollars. But, during the past seven years, these fifteen billions have soared to seventy-five billions, most of which is waiting to purchase homes, merchandise and securities.

Possibilities of Inflation
Nothing will ever happen in this country comparable to what happened in Germany following World War I. On the other hand, further inflation is inevitable. This will be caused by a surplus of money and a scarcity of goods, homes and securities. It will be due to war waste, increased consumption and to the need of other nations for help to get on their feet, which will require continual expenditures. Labor Union officials are also unconsciously causing inflation.

Increasing wages and prizes will cause the spiral to go upward until people have spent, or invested, most of the above seventy-five billions when they will go on a buyers' strike. Then the spiral will collapse with the customary decline in production, much unemployment and lower prices before that time comes, however. Before merchandise and securities will probably sell higher than at present. Yes, almost everything, except bonds, should continue to go up further in price.

Taxation Problems

We plan to collect in 1946 about thirty-five billions in federal taxes. This will probably be accomplished easily; but when the next depression comes it will be very difficult, if not impossible, for the Federal Government to collect one-half of this amount. This will be accompanied by another government spending spree and a resort to the printing presses. From such, everyone—wage workers, home owners and especially bondholders—could suffer terribly.

It is an old saying, "In the time of peace prepare for war." Based on this principle, the Federal Government should immediately reduce government bureaucratic expenditures; encourage the production of goods and homes; and subsidize the unselfish—but sane—development of foreign trade. The world needs our charity and help now. Helping unfortunate people to raise their standard of living is not only a Christian thing to do, but it will be good business for us.

Atomic Energy Possibilities

Were I Economic Director of the U. S., I would immediately re-convene the scientists who worked on the atomic bomb and get them busy applying this new energy to every-day uses. We might still be in the depression of the 1870's, if atomic energy had not pulled us out. We might still be in the depression of the 1890's, if electrical energy hadn't been harnessed. We would now be suffering from World War I, if the gasoline engine had not saved the day. Atomic energy may well serve a similar purpose to prevent a collapse around 1930.

I admit that the best authorities tell me that such an atomic development, within the next five years, is an impossibility. The stakes—namely the avoidance of national bankruptcy—are so high, however, that we should at once make a tremendous effort to show these "authorities" that they are wrong. We MUST immediately harness this new energy to develop new industries and new jobs.

Remember This Fact

Atomic energy for industrial and utility uses means vastly more than the substitution of atomic energy for coal and oil. Atomic energy produces an entirely new heat which is actually a new power. Atomic energy may be as much of an advance over steam power as steam power was an advance over hand power. Atomic energy will result in entirely new industries and vastly different machines than the now exist, all of which will provide millions of new jobs. If we get it harnessed in time, in short, to me the question is either of harnessing atomic energy before 1950 or perhaps facing national bankruptcy soon thereafter.

Question Arises Whether President Truman Gave Intentional Snub to Admiral King

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 23—Did President Truman intentionally or unintentionally snub Admiral King at the press conference earlier this week when lavish praise was bestowed on General Marshall and not a word spoken of the brilliant work done by the man who commanded our victorious naval establishment?

Many persons in the armed services have been wondering about it. This correspondent believes that it was an oversight on the part of the President, for Mr. Truman has always spoken to visitors in private in complimentary vein about Admiral King. What then was the reason for singling out General Marshall for special comment when the press conference also concerned Admiral King and Nimitz and General Arnold, all of whom figured in the announced changes?

The most plausible answer is that ever since the official army board of inquiry on Pearl Harbor issued a reprimand to General Marshall for failing to put the army forces at Pearl Harbor on the proper basis for defense on December 7, 1941, Mr. Truman has felt that somehow he must take the sting out of that criticism and show his disbelief in it.

The army report shows that General Marshall was away from his post of duty during the critical days prior to Pearl Harbor and was out horseback riding when fateful messages were coming in concerning the situation at Hawaii. It was, of course, the responsibility of the army and the Army Air Forces to defend Pearl Harbor when the ships were at anchor there and the special board of inquiry made quite a point of the failure of the chief of staff at Washington to transmit proper information to General Short.

Notwithstanding this background, Mr. Truman authorized the following quotation this week about General Marshall:

"I have said that I think he (General Marshall) is the greatest military man that this country ever produced—or any other country for that matter."

Now General Marshall is a very likable personality and he has done a very fine job as chief of staff but Mr. Truman is stretching it quite a bit to call General Marshall the "greatest military man this country ever produced."

There are some students of history who feel that Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee were our greatest generals and there are some who think a man by the name of Napoleon might be entered in the contest when the President begins to cover the history of all other countries, too.

There are observers who think that Marshal Foch was a great general and some who think the British and Russians have had some great generals in this war and maybe General Eisenhower rates a place at the top, too. Then there are some persons in America who think General Douglas MacArthur is a great military genius and that what he did with comparatively little resources against great odds in the Far East entitles him to be ranked with the best strategists and organizers in all our military history. Mr. Truman's adventure in superlatives was none too happy.

Actually, a powerful impression on Mr. Truman, having won him not only to the plan for one-year compulsory military training but to the idea of making one man generalissimo over the army, navy and air forces and reducing the amount of civilian control over the armed forces. Mr. Truman seems to stand in awe of military men and apparently is swept off his feet by them. For some reason, also, maybe it is his own relationship to the army in World War I—he has become a partisan of one armed service as against another.

Truman's reason for this is beginning to be apparent around Washington that the President has developed some prejudices against the navy and marine corps which cause him to tend to become subject to the control of the army and army air forces who will dominate the single defense department.

Washington, Nov. 22—The Truman administration is rapidly losing the prestige it once had. It is losing ground because it is not representing the public interest at a critical time in the industrial history of the nation.

Having liquidated the War Labor Board precipitately after V-J Day, the administration has left the country to suffer from the bitter fighting of two economic groups—management and workers.

The big auto strike has been threatened for some time. Everybody has known that it was coming. The administration has not used its influence to prevent the strike and to assure the nation a flow of motor vehicles.

Relying wholly on the labor-management conferences to work out a plan, the administration has no interim program for the emergency. This means that the public, which looks to the government for leadership finds no leadership there.

Congress, on the other hand, which has been waiting for President Truman's recommendations, will not be immune from public criticism. When the executive does not lead, the people expect their elected representatives in the national legislature to protect them.

The auto strike is a conspicuous example of the failure of collective bargaining to bring labor peace. The Wagner Act was passed by Congress in 1935 on the assumption that collective bargaining would remove the cause of strikes. But strikes have continued and the prospect is that the Army and Navy are demoralized, the jobs the veterans have been expecting to get will not be available and the economic loss to the country of the work stoppages will be irreparable.

Congress wrote into the Wagner Act that collective bargaining is compulsory where there is a bona fide majority for a labor organization. Congress has the right to legislate on compulsory mediation and to prohibit strikes while mediation processes are going on.

There can be no collective bargaining where there is greed and selfishness on either or both sides. To charge that one side refuses to bargain because it declines to accept a demand is to distort the meaning of collective bargaining. In many instances even after the negotiations have been carried on in good faith there comes a point where one side or the other refuses to yield. When such a stage is reached the public interest has to be considered.

As long as large corporations are permitted to exist in a democracy they must be amenable to public regulation, and now that large unions have developed, a similar power of regulation has to be utilized by government to protect the public interest. There, too, neither big business nor big unionism can be allowed to misuse the economic system by prolonged work stoppages.

So if the public interest is paramount, it becomes the duty of the government through finding agencies to inquire into the merits of a dispute where collective bargaining has failed to produce a settlement and mediation has been tried. The judgment of a government conciliator or mediator on the facts when given to the public would enlighten the people as to whether one side or the other is in the wrong and what steps if any should be taken by government to bring about a final settlement.

The problem of labor relations is not different from what it was in pre-war days but today the economic units are larger and more powerful. The corporations are bigger and control over rates of most workers than ever before. Likewise the union control over members. Both economic units have become so strong that the public interest can readily be damaged. Whenever such a critical stage is reached in American life, history records that the Congress steps in and enacts corrective legislation.

It would have been better if the labor-management conference could have recommended such legislation but the emergency of a strike crisis now puts the problem on the doorstep of Congress at once. The veterans who fail to get jobs may not be inclined to blame either workers or management because it will be too confusing a subject to understand, but they will readily blame the fact that they will readily blame the facts and issues—if it is not avoided action will allow an intolerable situation to prevail.

The 1945 Congressional elections are less than a year off and if 1946 is to be a year of economic war it is inevitable that the people will express themselves on it. At the polls, and retire from office those senators and representatives who have sat by while reconstruction has been retarded by economic strife on the part of a minority of the citizens of the country. Try Hot Water Plus After Meals For Acid Indigestion

If the thousands of unfortunate people who suffer from so-called dyspepsia, acid indigestion, food fermentation, sour stomach, flatulence, gas or other stomach distress brought on by excess acid would just try drinking slowly after each upsetting meal half a glass of real hot water containing one spoonful of Neutradol they can usually get amazingly quick relief in a very few minutes.

Neutradol is not a laxative—it is soothing and comforting to the mucous membranes and very agreeable to take. Neutradol—a physician's formula can now be obtained at Weber's Pharmacy or any first class drug store.

No Arrests Are Made on Holiday, 2 Car Accidents

Thanksgiving Day was observed quietly in Kingston and although a heavy rainstorm broke over the city early Thursday morning it ceased shortly after 9 o'clock, sun shone for several hours, before the sky again became heavy and overcast.

Although auto traffic was comparatively heavy during Wednesday and Thursday, only two accidents were reported to the police. There were no personal injuries and the damage was slight.

The first accident occurred about 11 o'clock Wednesday night when the automobile of Beatrice V. V. Cullum of 33 Emerson street, and a car driven by Elmore J. Beezmer of 121 Green street, collided at the intersection of Clinton and Albany avenues.

The other accident occurred at 6 o'clock Thursday evening when cars driven by Virgil Winnie of Big Indian and Michael Rossano of Catskill collided at the intersection of Main street and Clinton avenue.

No arrests were made over the holiday by the police.

GOOD ON LONG TRIP

Because a bill of goods ordered from London by a merchant in Belfast, Ireland, was labeled "Belfast, Ireland," it took five months for them to arrive after two months, the merchant complained to London of the delay. It took four months to discover that they were on a dock in Iceland. They were then sent to Leith, Scotland, to be forwarded to the nearest port to Belfast. Some bright lad decided Grimshy was nearest, so they went there first, then back to Leith, and from there to Belfast, via Glasgow.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

WHO RUNS THE U. S.?

In the days when I lived in the Far East, one of the usual arguments around the bars and hotel lobbies used to be, who runs Japan? Where is the center of power?

Well, who runs the United States? Obviously, the answer is the people. But what people? Where is the center of power? I don't know. Do you?

For instance, I'll wager that if a referendum were held—not a poll but a real, orderly referendum—the people would support the idea of bringing all the boys and girls back to the United States by Christmas. And if Congress truly and completely represented public opinion, they would support that idea. But they do not. Nor is the Government straining itself to demobilize our Army and Navy. The center of power with regard to that question is not the people. Who then is it?

Or to take another example:

who decided that all wages are to be raised by 30 per cent without raising prices? No Act of Congress determined that. When the President delivered an address on the subject, he made no such proposition. No figures have been produced by an authoritative body to prove that it must be 30 per cent and not any other percentage. Who decided that? Who is calling on workers in plant after plant on strike for this 30 per cent increase?

Are you even sure that no one has designs upon our economy, that these strikes are fomented not for higher wages but as a sinister political conspiracy? I am not sure one way or the other. I don't know. I can't find out. All that I do know is that we are in a very bad way and that we seem to have no leadership out of our troubles, that our politicians are frightened of somebody or something, that they say that they will not go out on a limb. But why should a sane and courageous approach to our economic and social problems be going out on a limb? Whom do they fear?

There is Harold Stassen, who wants to be the Republican candidate for President in 1948. He says that his party must be liberal and progressive. What does he mean by liberal and progressive? He wants his party to be run by or for labor and the farmer? What does that mean in the relationship to the rest of the people of the United States? Suppose Handsome Harold is nominated and elected, how will he apply the words "liberal and progressive" to the questions of the day? And how will he deal with the question of who is running this country? Are we to substitute one Sidney Hillman for another?

For instance, is it liberal and progressive to pass the May-Johnson Bill which would set up a totalitarian rule over atomic energy, or is it liberal and progressive to make American products non-competitive in the markets of the world? Is it liberal and progressive to devalue the American dollar in relationship to purchasing power? What specifically and concretely does he mean by liberal and progressive? It would be interesting to have some definitions. But no one defines anything. It is all talk. Maybe that is why no one can answer the question, who is running the United States?

Maybe there is no answer. Maybe nobody is actually running the United States. Maybe we are a congeries of individuals who coalesce and fall apart, day by day, on issue after issue, without plan or long-view purpose, but as the spirit moves us. Maybe that is why we get so mixed up.

When one looks at the current Pearl Harbor investigation, it certainly becomes clearer that it is easy to fool us because obviously what was told to the American people for a month before Pearl Harbor and for nearly three years afterward was neither the whole truth nor even the truth. Somebody was running the things very badly. But who was it? That apparently is what the Investigating Committee does not want to have brought out. They would prefer that we do not know. Maybe they are right. Maybe the less we know, the better off we are. Is that so? Who knows?

New York Guard

The New York Guard—1776 to 1946
A part of the armed forces of our country for 170 years.
Written by Walter Paul C. Habsburg,
Public Relations Officer, N. Y. G.

Colonel George Berry has been made aide to the commanding general of the New York Guard, succeeding in that position General William H. Kelly who is now chief of staff.

Colonel Berry has an outstanding record as a soldier of New York state, with long federal service during World War II. He is the son of General Charles W. Berry who was also a distinguished citizen of the Empire State. General Berry at one time commanded New York's own 27th Division. He was commander of the city of New York under Mayor "Jimmy" Walker and a professor at Columbia University—all that in addition to being an eminent physician.

George Berry was educated at the Keiskill Military Academy and New York University. He enlisted as a private of the New York state staff in 1923. At the expiration of that enlistment he joined Company E of Brooklyn's own 14th Regiment and thereafter rose rapidly through the non-commissioned and commissioned grades. In 1933 George Berry was made assistant quartermaster of New York's own 27th Division. In 1937 he was assigned to duty with the National Guard Bureau of the War Department in Washington.

In 1940 he was returned as a lieutenant colonel to the New York National Guard and was inducted into federal service with the 27th Division. In 1942 he was assigned to the G-4 section of the Eastern Defense Command which was commanded by his present chief, Lieut. General Hugh A. Drum. In 1943, Colonel Berry was transferred to the War Department general staff in Washington where he served as chief of personnel in the Civil Affairs Training Section. In 1944 Colonel Berry was ordered to London where he became executive officer of the G-1 section of the First United States Army group which was then commanded by General Omar Bradley.

Almost immediately after D-Day, he was sent to France and landed on the Omaha beachhead of Normandy. George Berry said of the vicious St. Lo fight—"Thousands of our warplanes roared overhead all through the day and all through the night, and the deafening thunder of artillery fire added to the savage din of battle—it was a day I'll never forget." He later saw combat in Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and the northern part of France.

For his outstanding war services Colonel Berry wears the following decorations: "The Bronze Star of the United States Army, the Congressional Service Cross of New York and the French Croix de Guerre. He also has the Pearl Harbor ribbon and the European Theatre of Operations on which are significantly attached three bronze battle stars.

Colonel Berry is executive director of General Drum's committee which is being organized for the purpose of bringing returned war veterans to the New York Guard where they may be ready to enter the new National Guard when it comes into existence.

Returned officers of the A.U.S. should communicate with Colonel Berry at New York Guard Headquarters. Enlisted men who are released from federal service should join the New York Guard. The New York Guard as such will have to carry on until the new National Guard is formed. That may be a year or more. The New York Guard urgently needs 4,000 men. If you are an able-bodied citizen between the ages of 27 and 55, enlist in your nearest Guard unit and be ready to become a part of the new National Guard.

ORCHIDS DEFY WAR

British hothouses never ceased supplying New York society women with delicate and costly orchids, all through the Battle of the Atlantic, London now reports. Development of that exotic industry helped sustain British export trade and more than 25,000 orchid plants sent to America during the war.

Periwigs, first mentioned in England in the 16th Century, still worn in court by English judges and barristers.

Veterans Protest Use of Ships

Congressmen Get Letter Protesting Priority for Civilians

A letter protesting the use of shipping space to return civilian workers to the mainland while high-priority servicemen are still awaiting transportation home from Pacific bases was sent to Congressman Jay LeFevre by the American Veterans Committee.

The letter reads: "On Thursday, Nov. 8, the aircraft carrier Hornet sailed from Oahu for the mainland with approximately 1,000 civilian navy yard workers aboard. On Oct. 15, there were 540,000 enlisted men with more than 60 points in the Pacific theater, 35,000 of them with 85 points or more, according to war department figures furnished to a congressional committee. (But not to the public apparently. They were published in Stars and Stripes with permission of the committee.) On Nov. 9, the following statements were published in Stars and Stripes: 'Wherever space is used for the transportation of civilians, it is because it is surplus. Navy officials said. Meanwhile, Midway army officials stated that it is likely that four or five other ships loaded with civilians will be going back to the states in the next few months. As for ships such as the Hornet going back with civilians aboard, the government brought these war workers over here under contract to be returned when their work was done. Many have been living here, since their jobs expired, at their own expense. The government is obligated to get them home.'

"If it is true that 540,000 enlisted men have been returned to the mainland since Oct. 15, or that more than enough transportation is immediately available for those who are left in the Pacific, the critical point score should be reduced at once and length of service provisions invoked."

"We believe that thousands of servicemen will find it difficult to understand the sudden precedence of contractual over moral obligations."

"We urge you to investigate this and similar instances of the breakdown of Admiral King's 'moral imperative' and to exert all possible pressure to insure the efficient and equitable completion of demobilization as rapidly as genuine occupational needs permit."

BIG BALLOON IN NEW YORK PARADE

A mammoth ice cream cone, one of five big new balloons built for the postwar renewal of the Thanksgiving Day parade staged annually in New York City by Macy's department store, is pulled along Broadway in the Times Square section.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

By the time this column is in print, you and I will be starting a fresh adventure abroad—first stop England.

That is to say, I'm hoping you will go along in spirit, for the sole purpose of this trip is to enable you and me to get behind the scenes of the great crisis which is ushering in a new world epoch. Our old globe never before has seen anything approaching the travail of this change.

Take Europe: Vast reaches are so battered and torn by the instruments of war that millions are without homes. Thousands upon thousands are perishing of starvation and disease, and others are facing death from these same grim killers.

In the midst of all this—and partly because of it—there is the great social revolution which has touched every country and has broken many wide open. The old ways of life are gone forever. Europe is being reborn—and the pangs of labor are cruel.

It has been my privilege to know Europe almost as well as I know the cozy study in which this is being written near New York. I've known its lovely countryside and its cities and its peoples from personal contact. But now the earthquake of war has changed even the face of the land. I have to go back and pick up where I left off on my last trip of 1942-43.

And I want you good folk to come along. Our trip across the Atlantic is likely to be easy and quick enough, for we shall fly in one of the great new Clippers which wing their way over in 15 hours or so. That will be far different from my first crossing in 1916.

I went from New York to Liverpool on the steamer St. Louis, a little ship of less than 6,000 tons which would have made a dandy lifeboat for the present-day 85,000-ton Queen Elizabeth. My fare (plus $5 tax) was $100—and you know what the price is now!

The St. Louis was truly Victorian, for she was built some five years before Britain's Queen Victoria died. I fear that St. Louis had a little of the propriety and austerity of that period, however, for she lurched and rumbled and heaved like a fat drowner in her cups—rather a horrid exhibition of manners, as a matter of fact.

The sea was at its worst and we had to have rocks on the tables to keep the dishes from shooting off across the saloon. Finally we staggered into fog-shrouded Liverpool and I spent my first night in a high-ceilinged hotel room which contained the biggest bed, clothed with the coldest sheets, I ever had encountered. In the bleak morning I noticed a little fireplace, and I rang a bell which summoned a chambermaid. I asked for a fire and received a stare of blank amazement which told me I had in some way overstepped the bounds.

However, the maid started a smudge with soft coal which quickly filled the room with dense smoke. That fireplace hadn't been used for years. Oh, well, that was thirty years ago. You and I will be whisked across the ocean on a magic carpet, and at the outset we shall be comfortable enough. But I warn you that during our later travels we shall have some tough times.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post
(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)
Appreciation of Registered Nurse's Kindness

The impulse in the following is understandable by us all: "Is it too late after four months to send a gift to a nurse who took care of me in the hospital? The more I think about her and the many kindnesses she showered on me, the more I want to show her my appreciation. Of course, she received her professional fee, but I'd like to do something beyond this. She is married and in the late thirties and I am married and perhaps a little younger. My husband thinks a gift of this sort might offend her, but I can't share his point of view."

I feel as you do that a gift offered in the right spirit surely will be appreciated. Christmas, moreover, gives you a perfect time to send it with a letter of affection and appreciation. Surely this is something that all of us would like to get!

Marriage Does Not Determine Position

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it out of place to have an unmarried sister for maid of honor when I have a married sister who in this case would have to take part as a bridesmaid? The married sister is a year and a half older than the unmarried one and we are all within a span of four years. I don't know whether the married one should take precedence over the other one.

Answer: Usually the one who is nearest in age to the bride or nearest in sympathy is the maid (or matron) of honor. It is not at all necessary to have the married one for matron of honor. She can be a brides matron equally well and the other sister can be maid of honor.

"Welcome Home" Party

Dear Mrs. Post: Is one supposed to take a present to a "Welcome Home" party for an overseas veteran?

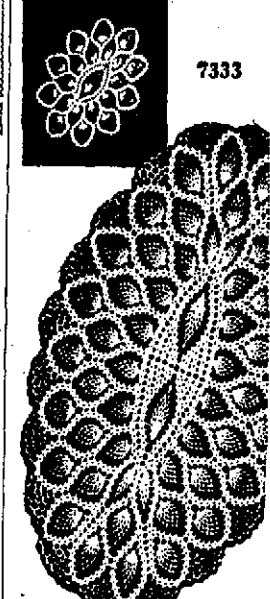

Answer: Although one never likes to go to a party of this sort entirely empty-handed, the present you take can be very trifling! A package of cigarettes, for example, would be all right.

For Mrs. Post's booklet 501, "The Etiquette of Weddings," send 10 cents in coin and a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to her in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, 19, N. Y.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Hull Declares He Played for Time

China but wanted "no ultimatum delivered to Japan."

"I concurred completely in the view that no ultimatum should be delivered to Japan," Hull said. "I had been striving for months to avoid a showdown with Japan and to explore every possible avenue for averting or delaying war between the United States and Japan."

The former secretary said that as early as November 7, 1941, he told the cabinet that "relations were extremely critical and we should be on the lookout for a military attack anywhere by Japan at any time."

He added that Ambassador Joseph Grew called warnings November 3 and 17 of the possibility of sudden Japanese attack which might make inevitable war with the United States.

He said Saburo Kurosu, Japanese "peace" ambassador, suggested that a temporary agreement might be reached, but that on November 20 the Japanese envoy presented a new proposal which on its face was extreme.

Hull said he told Kurosu this formula offered nothing helpful. The same day, the witness continued, word was received from the Dutch that Japanese forces had arrived near Palao, nearest point in the mandated islands to the heart of the Indies.

"The whole issue presented," he said, "was whether Japan would yield in her avowed movement of conquest or whether we would yield the fundamental principles for which we stood in the Pacific and all over the world. . . . They were armed to the teeth and we knew they would attack when and wherever they pleased."

Regarding the situation as "critical and virtually hopeless," he said he nevertheless went ahead with efforts to draft a temporary agreement.

'Poised for Attack'

On November 25, he said he told the war council, consisting of the President, secretaries of state, war and navy, the army chief of staff and the chief of naval operations, that "the Japanese military were already poised for attack."

The temporary agreement never was presented to the Japanese. Instead, Hull restated to them on November 26 the principles of peaceful cooperation and non-aggression on which he said the United States stood. This, he went on, was what Japanese propagandists later called his "ultimatum."

At a November 28 meeting of the war council, Hull said he pointed out that there was "practically no possibility of an agreement being achieved with Japan."

He reiterated, he declared, that it was up to the army and navy to safeguard national security.

Hull recounted various reports received of Japanese military activities, including a reported plan for them to attack the Kra peninsula on December 1 and the landing of additional troops in southern Indo-China.

"On November 30," he said, "I was informed by the British ambassador that the British government had important indications that Japan was about to attack Siam and that this attack would include a seaborne expedition to seize strategic points in the Kra isthmus."

Hull telephoned Mr. Roosevelt November 30 to come back from Warm Springs.

Then on December 6, Hull said the government received reports that a Japanese fleet of 35 transports, eight cruisers and 20 destroyers was moving from Indo-China toward the Kra peninsula.

"This was confirmation that the long threatened Japanese movement of expansion by force to the south was under way," he said.

He noted the President's telegraphic appeal that day to the Emperor of Japan to avert the "tragic possibilities."

"On December 7, the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor," he concluded at this point.

Not one chance

Not One Chance in 100

Hull said that from the very outset of the pre-war talks with Japan he estimated there was "not one chance in 20 or one in 50 or even in 100 of reaching a peaceful settlement."

He so concluded, he said, in the light of Japan's record of duplicity and "wide divergencies" between Japanese and U. S. policies in the Far East.

"But if there was a chance that new agreements would contribute to peace in the Pacific," he added, "the President and I believed that we should not neglect that possibility, slim as it was."

Hull attributed Japan's record of duplicity largely "to the fact that the Japanese military were a law unto themselves and consistently overrode commitments which civilian Japanese had given."

Under a subheading "situation in the United States," the former secretary recalled that as far back as 1933 the Senate Foreign Relations Committee turned down a proposal which would have authorized U. S. cooperation in an arms embargo against aggressor nations.

This and similar actions, he said, were interpreted by aggressors as meaning the U. S. would "not oppose effectively their policies of conquest."

For further illustration, he mentioned efforts he and Mr. Roosevelt made to revise neutrality legislation in the summer of 1938 as to have "strengthened the hands of the western democracies."

This, Hull recalled, "was violently opposed and blocked on the wholly mistaken theory that no war was likely to occur and, if it did occur, no attack against us was likely."

Federal Mediator Leaves for Detroit

Pickets Walk in Snow Today at General Motors Auto Plants

Detroit, Nov. 23 (AP)—Pickets marched in the cold and snow before strike-bound General Motors plants here today as a federal mediator left for Washington hopeful of an early settlement.

The striking C.I.O. Auto Workers Union meanwhile awaited a management reply to its proposal for arbitration of the 30 per cent wage increase dispute by a three-man board.

That reply, demanded by the union by last Tuesday, has been promised for today. The strike call was sent out to General Motors plants throughout the nation shortly after it became apparent the corporation's answer was not forthcoming before the deadline.

Two of the arbitration offer's provisions—requiring both parties to open their books to the board and preventing a tie-in of price increases with any wage increases—were believed inimical to the G.M. management's position.

John W. Gibson, special assistant to Secretary of Labor Schweikert, predicted after conferring with union officials here yesterday that the strike would not last beyond January 15.

"It probably will be settled before then," he added as he prepared to fly to the capital to report to Schweikert.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, Gibson, said General Motors officials were not in their offices and were unavailable for a discussion of the wage dispute.

Strikers at most of the 70-odd struck G.M. plants likewise took a day off, maintaining only "token" picket lines, but were back to their posts this morning.

To Set Up Soup Kitchens
Union leaders began laying plans for setting up soup kitchens. They admit no compensation can be paid to the strikers but hope to provide food, shelter and medical care in cases of hardship from the union's $4,000,000 strike fund.

The reinforced picketing was expected to add further to the nearly 200,000 G.M. employees now idle in 20 states.

Each union local has been authorized to decide for itself whether to let office workers through the gates. The corporation has advised its 73,000 office workers not to "force" their way into the plants.

Heads of numerous A.F.L. and Railroad Brotherhood Locals also have assured the U.A.W.-C.I.O. their members would not pass through picket lines. This would halt considerable reconversion work by A.F.L. building tradesmen and prevent truck and rail shipments of freight into the struck plants.

Foremen and supervisors will be permitted to enter only on agreement not to do strikers' work, according to the union.

An estimated 25,000 members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (C.I.O.) have remained at their jobs in G.M. plants. They are not involved in the 30 per cent wage dispute, but are negotiating for a $2-a-day raise.

George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, predicted the number of idle workers would be doubled or trebled eventually because of the dependence of other auto companies on General Motors for essential parts.

The ultimate weekly loss of workers' wages because of automotive strikes, he said, will approximate $27,000,000.

White House conference Wednesday night attended by both Anderson and Bowles.

The secretary said the ending of rationing will in no way affect government plans for the shipment of meats and certain fats and oils to allied and liberated countries.

Anderson said the supplies of fats and oils will continue to be limited for several months. He explained, however, that continued rationing of fats and oils after cessation of meat rationing would have necessitated establishment of a new rationing program, at least for a short time.

O.P.A., he said was not prepared to handle such a program.

Ration Book Four Is Needed for Sugar

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—O.P.A. today cautioned the public to be sure to save ration book number four for buying sugar.

A spokesman for the agency said, however, that with the termination of meats and fats rationing tomorrow, all other stamps in book four will be valueless. So, he added, are the red tokens which were given as change for meats-fats coupons.

The sugar stamp currently valid is number 38. It will be good for five pounds through December 31.

Settlement Reached In Horse, Bull Case

Settlement was reached Wednesday in an action brought by Frank McCord against John Romaine in Supreme Court, involving a horse and a bull in a goods sold and delivered action.

The horse, valued at $150, is to be returned by order of the court to plaintiff by noon today. Defendant under a counter claim contended the horse was not represented and that plaintiff refused to take it back.

The controversy involving the bull was also adjusted but since the bull has been butchered, it will not be returned as in the horse case. Cashin and Ewig appeared for plaintiff and G. R. Bartlett for defendant.

Court recessed until Monday at 10 o'clock when Justice Schirick will hear a negligence action brought by Bertha Peckerman against The Mohican Co. Cashin and Ewig for plaintiff and R. V. Spell for defendant. No. 130, Rose Fiore and another against Henry Rivenburg, a negligence action, will follow. Francis Martocci appears for plaintiff and R. V. Spell for defendant with Judge A. J. Cook of counsel.

to do with German rearmament, listened earnestly and jotted down notes as the affidavit and other documents were introduced.

One letter signed by the Reichsbank president and sent to Hitler January 7, 1939, said: "From the beginning the Reichsbank has been aware of the fact that successful foreign policy can be attained only by the reconstruction of the German armed forces. The Reichsbank therefore assumed to a very great extent the responsibility to finance rearmament in spite of the inherent dangers to the currency."

Another of Schacht's letters told of risking inflation in order to give the army all the funds it needed to assure "a successful foreign policy."

Another affidavit read by the prosecution was signed by Emil Puhl, a director of the Reichsbank, who said Schacht has created a fake organization "Metallurgische Forschungs Gesellschaft," presumably a research fund into which armaments funds flowed and then out again to munitions makers, cloaking the German rearmament program.

Committed to War
The prosecutor read from the diary of former Ambassador William E. Dodd the statement that Schacht admitted to the American envoy in September, 1934, that the Hitler party was absolutely committed to war and that the people were willing.

A basic directive of the Reich economic ministry issued September 30, 1934, was introduced by the prosecution to show Hitler started preparing for war. It read:

"(The ministry) has been charged with the economic preparation for war, a task considered important in view of the lessons of the first World War. The theoretical part includes legal and organizational preparation, such as laws and directives. The practical preparation includes the building up of stockpiles, new construction of facilities to produce scarce goods, redeployment of industry to secure areas and influence over fiscal and trade policies. The task of stockpiling is being hampered by lack of foreign currency. The need for secrecy and camouflage is also a retarding influence."

Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence cut short the reading of the I. G. Farben Company officials' affidavit describing the 1933 meeting in which Schacht proposed raising campaign funds for Hitler, remarking that it seemed to prove merely that a meeting had been held.

At one time during the presentation of documents, Alfred Seidl, counsel for defendant Hans Frank, jumped to his feet to complain.

Police Are Busy On Wulven Case
Hit-Run Driver Is Being Sought Out; Have Promising Clue

Various clues and rumors are being investigated by the Kingston Police Department in an effort to learn the identity of the hit and run driver who struck and killed Luther B. Wulven, retired Philadelphia policeman, on West O'Reilly street, Monday night.

The most promising lead found by the police is that there were two people in the automobile that struck Mr. Wulven.

At the time he was struck and killed Mr. Wulven was walking home along West O'Reilly street. He had spent the early evening at the home of Peter Letus on Wilbur avenue. Mr. Wulven left the Letus home about 8 o'clock in the evening.

His body was found later in a pile of wet leaves near the West O'Reilly street entrance to Wilbur cemetery. It is believed he was instantly killed when struck.

There are no houses on the side of the street where the body was found, and the nearest house to the cemetery entrance is several hundred feet away.

Eisenhower Goes To Hospital With Cold; Cancels Plans

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—A severe cold put Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, newly designated chief of staff, in a hospital today.

The illness interrupted the General's plan to make a farewell visit to Europe before taking over his new job.

Suffering from what was officially described as a respiratory ailment, Eisenhower boarded a train here last night for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to enter the Army's Ashford General Hospital.

The Army said Eisenhower was following the advice of his physician, Maj. Gen. Harold M. Snyder, who suggested hospitalization "to prevent any complications developing" from a severe cold.

The General's illness, said a War Department announcement "canceled for the time being General Eisenhower's plans to return to Europe where he intended to fulfill several important engagements."

He apparently had arranged to go to American occupation headquarters in Germany with Gen. Joseph McNarney, appointed to succeed Eisenhower as chief of United States forces there.

McNarney, who had a date for a conference with President Truman today, plans to leave Washington late this week or early next week.

The duties of the chief of staff now are being carried on by the deputy chief, Gen. Thomas T. Handy.

Mt. Marion Woman Struck by Bullet
A bullet from a .22 calibre rifle broke a window glass in the store and post office of Mrs. F. Hill at Mt. Marion Wednesday afternoon. After going through the window the spent bullet ricocheted and struck Mrs. Hill in the chest, but had not sufficient force left to injure her seriously.

The affair was reported to the sheriff's office and investigation disclosed that the bullet had come from a rifle with which three boys were shooting at a tin can in a field near the Hill store.

to do with German rearmament, listened earnestly and jotted down notes as the affidavit and other documents were introduced.

One letter signed by the Reichsbank president and sent to Hitler January 7, 1939, said: "From the beginning the Reichsbank has been aware of the fact that successful foreign policy can be attained only by the reconstruction of the German armed forces. The Reichsbank therefore assumed to a very great extent the responsibility to finance rearmament in spite of the inherent dangers to the currency."

Another of Schacht's letters told of risking inflation in order to give the army all the funds it needed to assure "a successful foreign policy."

Sherman Tanks Used
Batavia, N.Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—Employing Sherman tanks for the first time in their Soerabaja offensive, British Indian troops pushed 2,000 yards southward in that naval base today and by nightfall held two-thirds of the city. At the end of a day of swift advances yet, the British were fighting for the principal hostelry, capturing Hotel Oranje on the northern limits of the wealthy Simping residential area.

that some of the evidence had not previously been listed with defense counsel. He asked for a delay in the trial, but proceedings were resumed when Col. Robert G. Storey, an assistant U. S. prosecutor, promised a better distribution system would be worked out.

The prosecution said secret German plans for war as early as February 22, 1933, were contained in the minutes of a working committee of "delegates for Reich defense" in which Field Marshal Helmuth von Goering was quoted as saying: "Secrecy of all Reich defense work has to be maintained very carefully. No document must be lost, since otherwise enemy propaganda would make use of it. Matters communicated orally must not be proved, they can be denied by us in Geneva (League of Nations)."
